

The Netherlands: population and development

The Netherlands is a densely populated country. In this chapter, you will learn how many people live there, and where they live.

The number of people living in a region has all kinds of effects on the region's development, for example the services (shops, sports clubs, hospitals).

In the menu option of the coursebook you can choose a web exercise: in the digital city. We really recommend this one, you can let your imagination run free.

